OLD YORK HOSTS AN IRISH EVENING IN JEFFERDS TAVERN WITH SOME BREWING COMPANY

York, Maine—Celebrate St. Patrick’s Day with Old York Historical Society and SoMe Brewing Company in historic Jefferds Tavern, on Saturday, March 16, 2019, at 7pm. The evening features SoMe’s popular craft beers, traditional Irish foods, and toe-tapping fiddle music.

Enjoy a flight of four of SoMe’s local craft beers, including “Angry Inch,” a special dry Irish stout brewed just for the occasion, and warm up by the fire with a bowl of hearty Irish stew. Prepared over the open hearth by Chef Bill Irish of For the Love of Food and Drink in Wells, the stew is accompanied by Irish soda bread and Irish Guinness cake. A vegetarian option also will be available. And, since no St. Patrick’s Day celebration would be complete without some soul-rousing music, Cathryn Norris entertains on the Irish fiddle.

Old York is delighted to partner with SoMe Brewing Company for this special event. The father-and-son team of Dave and David Rowland has been creating unique craft beers at the SoMe brewery at 1 York Street since 2013. The distinctive flavors and concepts behind their beers have garnered them huge popularity, and led them this year to open the York Beach Beer Company, a tasting room in York Beach.

Jefferds Tavern is located at 3 Lindsay Road, York, ME 03909.

Tickets are $45 / $40 for members, and are available online at oldyork.org/upcoming-events, or by calling 207-363-4974.

ABOUT JEFFERDS TAVERN

Built in 1750 in Wells, Maine, just north of York, Jefferds Tavern was originally located on the King’s Highway, a stage and mail route between Portsmouth and Portland. In 1941 the building was moved to York and restored to create an idealized version of a true colonial tavern. Today the building is used year round as a museum program center, and events venue.
